President, CEO, and director Alan Carter presented the Cabral story to the City Investors Circle in London.

The attendees were impressed by a passionate and well delivered presentation of the potential for the the District-Scale Cuiú Cuiú Gold Project in northern Brazil.

Cuiú Cuiú is located in the Patajos region in north Brazil, scene of the world's largest gold rush between 1970 and 1990, where an estimated 1.5 – 2 million ounces of gold were mined by garimperos.

Cabral already have a resource of 1 million ounces of gold, but are looking to increase that with a new drill program in areas where they have already encountered really high grade intercepts, and other areas where the geology looks similar, and are rated as very prospective for gold.

Management have skin in the game, bought at market prices. and their G & A is frugal compared to their peers.

Cabral have a potential district scale project in an area prolific for gold, with a low market cap, offering investors the opportunity to earn significant shareholder value if the project proves to be commercially viable.
