Impact Minerals (ASX: IPT) Dr. Mike Jones, MD of Impact Minerals, presented to the circle in London yesterday, and impressed investors with a solid presentation of the company's prospects and projects in Queensland, NSW, and Western Australia.

A prospect generator, Impact holds the potential to reward the patient investor if any one of their prospective projects come to fruition.

Impact have in fact several projects that could potentially become company makers, hunting elephants in elephant country.

A strong management team is always the sign of a good company, and Impact have such a team, led by MD Mike Jones.

Impact have a high number of shares out, >2 billion, and a low share price, 1 cent, but have multiple promising projects in highly prospective areas.

Impact have been added to our early stage explorers watchlist, so that we can follow the progress of the company in the future.

In my opinion, Impact is not a stock for widows and orphans, but certainly a stock where you can buy a position, and leave it to see if it prospers.

Mike Jones leads a good team, so you wouldn't want to bet against them…
