

Minera IRL issues an RNS on a Saturday!

Minera IRL {AIM: MIRL} has issued a news release on a Saturday! This is extremely unusual, if not totally unique, but sadly the shareholders of this company are used to the unusual by now!

In the ongoing dispute between the BOD and their Peruvian subsidiary, the postponed EGM is set to conclude this Wednesday, and the wording of the RNS now leaves the result in some considerable doubt.

Comment

I do not like the look of the wording here, I feel that some votes may have been persuaded to change sides.

The previous EGM was postponed without the voting being declared, but London based SP Angel suggested the rebel group collected over 90% of the votes, with a block of 19% held by Rio Tinto.

If that block has been persuaded to change sides, the rebel group could lose.

I have a bad feeling about how the meeting will go now, hope i'm wrong of course.

In light of such proxy revocation, the Board has determined that any potential issue with such votes has been resolved to its satisfaction and therefore the investigation has terminated. In his capacity as Chair of the EGM, Mr. Jaime Pinto confirms that, following such proxy revocation, he presently knows of no reason that any proxies submitted for the EGM cannot be validated.
