Minera IRL previous report “not NI 43-101 compliant”

Minera IRL {CSE: MIRL} has issued a correction notice for their previous October 2017 announcement regarding

The company have informed the market that the report was not NI 43-101 compliant, and should not be relied upon”.

.

.

Minera IRl announce previous report “not 43-101 compliant and should not be relied upon!

Comment

I found it somewhat strange that the company, having made this announcement, saying it had “lost confidence in the author of the technical report referred to”, then go on to say they expect “no material change” in the revised report!

This begs the question, if they have lost confidence in the previous author, what is the reason for that, if there will be no change to the ultimate result of the revised work?

This does not make sense to me.

To read the full article, please click HERE