This looks a very interesting appointment, as Eric " had an active role in a number of completed transactions including the acquisition of Goldcorp Inc. and the formation of the Nevada Joint Venture with Barrick Gold Corporation".

I have noticed for a while that despite a falling gold price and some miners' share prices dropping, Orla's price seems to be ignoring all that market noise and ploughing ahead all by itself.

Now we have this appointment, and one has to wonder whether a corporate transaction may be on the cards here? It's entirely possible I'm reading too much into it, but this looks a very interesting appointment to me, and I'm personally enthused by this news.

Eric has participated in some significant transactions in the past, I wonder if Orla could be the next one?
