

Strongbow's Cornish tin mine threatened by proposed new housing development

Strongbow Exploration {TSX.V: SBW}

An application to build new housing at South Crofty in Cornwall could threaten Strongbow Exploration's plans to reopen the former tin mine adjoining the development land.

The local council will likely oppose the housing development due to the employment prospects the new mine would provide to the local community.

Keith Russ, stands in a mining tunnel at South Crofty tin mine in Redruth, U.K. Strongbow Exploration could have the mine in production by 2020, delivering 20 tons of tin a day, according to Chief Executive Officer Richard Williams. Photographer: Simon Dawson/Bloomberg

Strongbow Exploration {TSX.V: SBW}

An application to build new housing at South Crofty in Cornwall could threaten Strongbow Exploration's plans to reopen the former tin mine adjoining the development land.

The local council will likely oppose the housing development due to the employment prospects the new mine would provide to the local community.

To read the article in full, please click HERE