Canadian Anti Shorting Conference

City Investors Circle London

Terry Lynch has founded a group called Save Canadian Mining. The focus on stopping short selling junior mining stocks.

Terry is hosting a virtual conference with guests such as Eric Sprott to discuss the problem of short selling junior stocks, if you wish to register

Comment

I fully support this initiative, shorting of junior companies of any sector is clearly damaging the very markets set up to assist juniors to grow and develop.

It is clearly ridiculous that these stocks can be ruthlessly shorted, harming long term investors who then retire from the markets after losing money in what may have turned out to be a good investment ,had the company not been shorted into oblivion.

Clearly some wise heads are now taking up the gauntlet, and the incusion of Eric Sprott will surely result in this cause getting some good publicity and backing from the wider investment community.

I hope people support this cause, it will make investing more about growing innovative companies and less about spivs making money off the back of lotal shareholders, in my opinion.
