Mining Review 10th August 2025

Donald Trump caused chaos in the gold market this week with an announcement to tariff gold imports into the USA. This would impact Swiss refiners. An excellent synopsis can be read HERE.

This seems designed to hit Switzerland it what looks like a personal attack on the country, and at the time of writing the US government is stating it will issue an "clarification" soon.

Orla mining updated on the Camino Rojo mine pit wall collapse, with a lowered productio guidance of 5% and a slight increase in AISC. It could have been worse!

Ora Banda Mining announced a high-grade gold strike, which did nothing to lift the depressed share price after the recent lowered production and costs guidance. They seem a hard to please bunch down under, OBM is trading at a tad over 50% from it's high for a relatively small miss.

West Red Lake Gold Gold Mines gave out a decent update, but again did nothing to help a share price that lost momentum when the sad news of a fatality in the mine was released recently.

An interesting story to emerge from the Australian media is that Meeka Metals were knocked back in a bid to acquire New Murchison Gold.
