"The Madsen mine ramp up is progressing well, and drilling into new gold zones deeper in the deposit while we ramp up reinforces our view that Madsen will be a sustainable producing asset in Red Lake for many years to come.

"The site team is eager to get the underground drills to deeper parts of the system and is currently finalizing plans for development projects that will facilitate access to more distal portions of the resource for conversion drilling and future mine planning.

“We are staying aggressive in our exploration approach because we believe in the discovery potential at Madsen and within the Red Lake district.”
