Comment

Wow, what a hole!

These drill results have really woken up the share price today, and with good reason.

The visible gold comment is exciting, and this news comes just as the company is ramping up production ready to switch on the Madsen Mill.

I topped up last week, and may do so again now.

Shane Williams, President & CEO stated

“As the underground definition drill program at Madsen advances at depth we continue to unlock significant value within the orebody.

“While the life-of-mine resource model accurately informs metal content throughout the deposit, it is tight-spaced drilling provides the resolution needed to properly quantify and realize further upside potential from the very high-grade pockets of gold mineralization ahead of stope design.

“The area highlighted in this update sits just beneath Stope 6 from our recent bulk sampling program and demonstrates the growth potential and increased continuity we are seeing in the deposit at depth.

“Having just reported excellent reconciliation results from our bulk sampling campaign, and with strong tailwinds from a rising gold market, the team’s confidence level is high as we move towards ramping up production at Madsen in the second half of 2025.”
